Customer Reviews

If one is seeking a book of ethnic medicines based on ancient Biblical diet & herbs, this is not such a book. Rather, it a Basic Guide for Christians who want the essential information concisely and with Biblical based Christian prayer guidance. As a traditional Catholic, I find this booklet valuable though written apparently by a non-Catholic. Dr Colbert describes the medical treatment, advises doing nothing apart from the Physician, lists the most beneficial vegetables, nutrients, vitamins, herbs and those he thinks contraindicatory. He indicates the medical basis for what he writes. On contraindicated foods, I disagree strongly that Milk is one such food -- because having properties that block excess iron uptake, vital for fighting HCV -- but altogether there is a good basic guide to everything. Nor do I find dairy fats problematic; but both milk and dairy fat (high in fat soluble vitamins) tolerance are highly individualistic. If one is a dairy foods aficionado, not counting ice cream sugar cravers, then one may have no trouble digesting them. Fighting HCV, my diet is basically Mediterranean and Dairy (possibly from my Nordic genes) -- plentiful in grains, fruits, all kinds of cheeses & whole milk, nuts, raw vegetable salads, with some meat & fish. Being a little too "dogmatic" in the supposed foods-to-avoid results in less than 5 stars. Interferon-Ribavirin Therapy is discussed. Recommended are herbs like Milk Thistle (Silibum marianum) and Bupleurum, vegetables like Artichokes, supplements like Thymus extract -- it is almost all here.
