I am a hair dresser who is continuously learning and I fund all of my continuing education with my tips. One of the areas that I needed to work on was my haircoloring technique. I truly believe that you must and I stress MUST have a solid foundation in anything to build on. I know have all of David's books and I can truly say I have a better understanding and a solid foundation to build on. I had purchased and studied these books prior to attending the ABCH Summit in LA and I have to say it made a world of a difference to have this knowledge before hand. I highly recommend all of David Velasco's books. One of the best investments I've ever made!RSelt

Why out in the real world are there so many brunettes that look greenish or brassy? OMG, could it be THAT many people color their own hair... or even worse, have it done by hairdressers who don't understand underlying pigment? These licensed but, uninformed practitioners are competing with "kitchen beauticians" and are losing clients. Why should they pay professional fees when they can screw it up themselves just as well? Learn from David all the secrets he has learned through many years of working with top colorists and being one himself. He is not only a master with color but also a master of words. Let him walk with you and explain each step through his books. They are all worth more than their weight in gold.Edi LePere, ABCH
