Customer Reviews

They were a big hit with the students and with the parents at Back to School Night! My only complaint is I did not know how many came in a package. For those of you who are asking that same question, the answer is 30.

I have my students fill out there poster whenever they are chosen as the Star Student of the week. Each student can present their poster, take a few questions, and then bask in the glory of having their poster hanging in the hall for the week. Also, after the poster has been presented, I have every student write a friendly letter to the Star Student. All letters are made into a booklet that the Star Student receives at the end of their week.

I use these posters every year in my classroom. My students love each component on the newspaper. It is not too overwhelming, and it provides me with a quick assessment on my students. They do take my students some time to complete them, so if you plan to use them in your room, make sure you schedule enough time.

These posters work great if used in conjunction with open house. Kids love filling them out and parents love reading their child's. A wonderful writing prompt!

I teach fifth grade and use these posters each year. The students complete them at home and then they are up in time for Back to School Night. Also, it is their first speech grade which is great because I let them read the different areas making the first one low pressure compared to the rest of the year. We love getting to know everyone better. For quality purposes, I do walk them through each section using my sample and the one that comes in the package. There are only 30, so you may have to buy two sets for all your students. One last note, this year I found that Scholastic had them available to buy with thier bonus points. Free is nice!

Perfect activity for the first week of school and to have on hand for open house. I like that this one makes the kids write a little more, so it would be good for fourth or fifth grade in my opinion.

I teach 5th grade and this is an excellent product for my 5th graders. I use these on the 1st day of school and they work great as an ice-breaker activity. Once the students complete their posters I then display them on a bulletin board in the hallway for parents to look at on Back to School Night. There are many great writing activities on the poster which are age appropriate. 30 posters come in a package as well as a mini lesson guide for different ideas and ways to use the posters. Please note that the product dimensions listed are the size of the posters when they are folded! Unfolded they are large posters that span 22" by 17". Overall, I would definitely recommend this product, especially at the fantastic price they are listed at.

GREAT for a beginning of the year project with kids... let them use their imagination and their markers!!
