Customer Reviews

I've been homeschooling for about 10 years and have used many different plan books trying to find one that fits my needs, this one by Stephanie Embrey fits my needs so well, I just bought another one for the coming school year. First of all, the heavy-card-stock cover and spiral binding stays in tack all year. In the front and back "covers" are an accordion-style pocket (I use it to store the "tear-out" answer sheets that are in workbooks), there are 3 divider tabs: Planner, grade records, Reference pages. Pages 4-14 include instructions, student roster, seating charts, birthdays, sub teacher info, class list, tips for communication, and parent contacts and behavior records.(24 students, pages 14-24--even as a homeschooler, you could record behavior for a rewards system). The first divider:Planner. Page 26 is a 4 year calenders for 2013-2016 or 2012-2015 (which this one has) on the one page, the next 2 pages are "Year at a glance" with a "fill in the blank" month, year, and 10 lines for notes (6 per page), followed by the actual planner: Week of ____ to ____, period, subject and two lines across the top of the two-page spread. then along the Left side is the days of the week with a place for the date, absences, and "Things to do Today" with five lines to write in. then across the two-page spread is 8-lined columns: 2 lines for "period/subject" (I record: Math, Grammar, History, Etc), 2 thicker lined spaces below that (I use for writing the topics : Percents to decimals, Commas, Rev. War Begins, etc), then comes the boxes to write the lesson plans 1 1/2 x 1 1/2" with 6 lines to write your plans for the class.
